2) If completed by January 1st, you will be eligible for our priority deadline – allowing for early access to group interview registration.

3) You will receive an email with notice of your application decision within two weeks of the nearest deadline (priority or final).

Qualifications

Qualified applicants are undergraduate students, carry a minimum of 8 academic credits, and are well-rounded individuals who can speak to their experiences in multiple areas of campus life. Strong candidates will typically:

- 1) Have leadership skills and applicable experiences.
- 2) Have been involved in various aspects of student life: clubs, organizations, cultural groups, work-study, research, student government, etc.
- 3) Have familiarity with various academic and student resources on campus.
- 4) Be confident in their abilities to effectively present the positive attributes of the University of Oregon.

Remuneration

SOSers will make around $2500 before taxes, on average.

Training

There is required training for SOSers during the spring term prior to employment. Attendance is mandatory at these trainings.
